

Every person is a theologian – which means that every person thinks some things, perhaps many things about God. I discovered this to my discomfort as a kid when I started noticing that the bands that I liked had songs about God. I loved Pink Floyd, but clearly Pink Floyd did not love the God.

Obviously then, every Christian is a theologian – which means that everybody in the pews interprets the Bible. Whether we read it for ourselves or hear it read on a Sunday morning, we can't help but to try to make sense of it, to put the puzzle pieces together. What is God like? What does he do? What does he expect from me? What does he think about me? Why does God seem peaceful and forgiving in one passage, but angry or frustrated in this other?

Pastors are theologians. We have more training, we've taken classes, and we have been called to certain tasks, at the heart of which is teaching lay people about God and the scriptures in which we encounter him. We have some training, some specialization, but the task is not so different from your task. It's to ask questions and seek answers; and then, of course, to tell the congregation.

What I've discovered about myself in being your pastor is that I want to be open about the process of seeking and discovering. This wasn't always my understanding. When I started as a pastor eight years ago I wanted to find the answer or the interpretation and present it persuasively to the congregation - fully formed. If I'm uncharitable to myself I might say it like this: I wanted to do all the thinking so that I could protect the congregation from mistakes.

April 2019

My calling now, as I understand it, is to struggle through the scripture with you or, sometimes, in front of you. This is how my week works for me. I read the gospel lesson at the beginning of the week at the men's group (Monday morning in the library at 7:30.) We talk about it. Sometimes there is immediately an idea, sometimes there are just questions. This is really valuable time, both because I try to explain things and because other people are saying, "This is what I see." During the week when I'm bringing communion to someone or maybe just if I've bumped into them, I'll talk about it some more. More often than not people aren't giving me their strong opinions, but they are reacting and there is something very valuable about talking about the scripture with another person. I read books about it too, especially if the lesson seems extra puzzling. And then Saturday night and Sunday morning are almost like reporting back to you about what I've found.

My hope for this is that you feel empowered to be askers of questions and seekers of answers. I want you to know that you are theologians. I want you to know that theological answers don't come from some professional who knows everything, but from a process in which we're all engaged. God calls all of us to seek him and he empowers us by the Spirit to understand his word. The more we struggle (together) with and delight (together) in this holy and day to day task the healthier our congregation will be. We are a church of theologians!

WELCA Executive Meeting

The ESJ Women of the ELCA held their annual executive meeting on March 6, 2019 at 3:45 p.m. There were no minutes or treasury balance available.

There was no old business.

New business:

- 1) Women's gathering is on alternate years and this is not the year.
- 2) Shoes will be collected this fall.
- 3) Cards will continue as long as there are donations. There is a current need for anniversary and sympathy cards.
- 4) There are no kitchen needs at this time.
- 5) Do Days will continue through March.
- 6) We will again help with visiting residents at Park View on Mondays in June but are not allowed to take in our homemade snacks. We will invite all church friends to join in visiting.
- 7) There is about $700 in our treasury to send to missions. We chose The Well Project, Calhoun Co. Outreach, Sac Co. Outreach, CoDR, LSI, Lotus Community Project and Voice of the Martyrs.
- 8) Kim F. graciously agreed to send gifts to college students.
- 9) We will add Personal Care Kits to those of Do Days.

Greetings Church Family!

It is Synod Assembly time again and I want to thank you all for the opportunity to attend as a voting member representing Emanuel-St. John Lutheran Church. Please visit <http://www.wisynod.org/assembly-2019.html> to learn more about what will be happening at this year's assembly. I would love to have input from you to take along with me as I think about how to cast my vote. I would like to bring attention to this year's designated offering, Igumbilo Lutheran Girl's Secondary School. When I traveled to Tanzania, our time spent at this school was a highlight of the trip. Igumbilo is an awesome place and provides opportunity for girls that they would not have otherwise. Please see the flyer and visit the website to see the good work done here and consider giving, I will do my best to lift this opportunity up during the next weeks leading up to assembly. Please reach out to me if you have questions or ideas on how we can further walk with these girls in their educational journey. Be a Blessing.

Yours in Christ,
Michelle Talbott

CoDR Sponsors Storytellers

How important is it to have dads read books to their children? VERY. Ask any reading teacher. CoDR sponsors Storytellers. It is an opportunity for prisoners to produce a DVD of themselves as a father, grandfather or other approved inmate to read to his child/children. Church of the Damascus Road organizes the donated books, DVDs, and mailing envelopes. Once a month, at both the Ft. Dodge prison and the Rockwell City prison, inmates pick a children's book and record reading it into a computer. The book and DVD are sent to the child. The only expense for the inmate is the mailing postage.

Outside sources donate the books that are in good condition. I witnessed about 500 books neatly laid out on tables for inmates to select. The guys choose the book(s) that they think their child may enjoy. Looking into the computer, the inmate can add personal messages to the child as he reads the book aloud, and shows the pages for no more than 15 minutes.

I can only imagine the joy of a child seeing Daddy's face and hearing him read a book aloud. The child can listen as many times as he wants. The child can follow along in the book or read aloud with Daddy.

This Storytellers Program creates a positive connection with Dad. It also encourages the child to read which has earned the Celebrate Literacy Award through the Iowa Reading Association. The connection with Dad and promoting reading is a win-win program well worth continuing. Please pray for this inmate participation for his child.

National Child Abuse Prevention Month

According to the Iowa Department of Human Services, 8,558 Iowa children were found to be abused in 2017. The most common forms of abuse included denial of critical care, physical injury, exposure to illegal drugs and sexual abuse.

Lutheran Services in Iowa (LSI) helps combat child abuse through prevention, safety, and stability services, as well as mental and behavioral health treatment.

Through regular in-home visits to families, LSI's Early Childhood Services prevent child abuse by giving parents the support, education, and resources they need to build a healthy, stable home for their children. In 2018, our Early Childhood programs provided more than 14,000 in-home visits to families.

LSI's Family Safety, Risk, and Permanency Services help children and families already involved in a crisis or abuse situation to become safer and more stable, and LSI's Bremwood and Beloit Residential Treatment Centers serve many children and youth who have experienced trauma from past abuse or neglect.

You make a direct impact on these children and families through your support of LSI. Thank you!

Our Mission: Lutheran Services in Iowa responds to the love of Jesus Christ through compassionate service. LSI is an affiliated social ministry partner of the Iowa congregations of the ELCA (Evangelical Lutheran Church in America) and a member of LSA (Lutheran Services in America). We proudly serve people of all ages, abilities, religions, sexes, gender identities, national origins, ethnicities, races, and sexual orientations. A Life-Changing Service

Amanda felt helpless when her children were removed from their home. She and her husband, Nathan, struggled with substance use, and they could no longer provide a safe environment for their children.

But with help from LSI's Family Safety, Risk, and Permanency Services, Amanda has overcome every obstacle to build a future she only dreamed possible.

LSI connected Amanda and Nathan to parenting and sobriety resources in their community, and their LSI worker, Katie, helped them schedule regular visits with their children.

Knowing Katie was there to cheer them on, even on the bad days, the couple was determined to beat their addiction. It was time to turn their lives around and fight for their family.

Amanda and Nathan recently celebrated two years of sobriety, and all three of their children have returned home. Amanda now also collaborates with the Iowa child welfare system and organizations like LSI to support more families in need of the same care she received.

"I'm grateful that Katie and LSI were a part of our lives. They weren't there to hinder, they were there to help," Amanda says. "I feel accomplished, and I feel really good about where my family is at in our lives. Now I'm just happy to help other families achieve their goals and realize they are not alone."

Why "Good" Friday?

When we understand that the New Testament meaning of "good" was "holy," we can understand how it is appropriate to describe our Lord's crucifixion day as "good." The word "holy" is entirely consistent with the suffering of our Lord on the Cross when we take into full account the reason for it.

Good Friday, Passion Friday or Holy Friday—which-ever—all bear the same significance—a day for us to meditate on the hours Jesus spent on the cross.

And then on the third day----
